Monticello Welcomes a New Trustee

CHARLES “CHIPS” LONGLEY of Charlottesville, Virginia, has been elected to the board of trustees of the Thomas Jefferson Foundation. His term began on January 1, 2015.

Mr. Longley is the retired CEO of DHL Worldwide Express, a global logistics company serving more than 200 countries and territories. He spent 25 years of his career in Asia. Among other leadership roles, Mr. Longley was an advisor to Hong Kong's chief executive on trade and a governor of the American Chamber of Congress in Hong Kong.

A graduate of the University of Virginia, Mr. Longley previously served on the boards of UVA's College of Arts and Sciences and Athletic Foundations, as well as its Advisory Committee on University Medicine.

“Chips’ diverse leadership experience has already proven invaluable as we strive to engage a national and global audience in a dialogue with Jefferson’s ideas,” said Leslie Greene Bowman, President and CEO of the Thomas Jefferson Foundation. “Monticello is truly fortunate to welcome him to the board.”
